

Author Bio

Award-winning author Hank Quense has over a dozen books, fifty short stories and a dozen articles on fiction writing. He has been published by a small indie publishing house, has self-published and now has his own publishing company, Strange Worlds Publishing. He has lectured extensively on Story Design and Self-publishing.

His Fiction Writing Guides provide the new and inexperienced fiction writer with a wealth of valuable advice and directions. Based on his journey of discovery on how to write publishable fiction, he details a process that focuses the writer's creativity on the important elements of story design. Using advance graphical software, he has developed a unique way to manage the creative process and monitor progress.

Hank lives in Bergenfield, NJ with his wife Pat. They have two daughters and five grandchildren. He writes humorous fantasy and scifi stories. On occasion, he also writes an article on fiction writing or book marketing but says that writing Nonfiction is like work while writing fiction is fun. A member of the Science Fiction Writers of America, he refuses to write serious genre fiction.

Fiction Writing Guides

This unique series of ebooks give the new or inexperienced fiction writer an opportunity to see how stories are created.

Stories are developed from a combination of three elements: ideas and creativity, story design and story-telling techniques.

The ideas and creativity have to come from the writer, but the story design and story-telling have to be learned. One way to learn these elements is through self-study and trial-and-error. Another way is the use the tools Quense has developed.

Create a Short Story Workshop is a series of four lectures on how create a work of short fiction. The guide includes all the slides used and the presenter's notes

Manage your Story Design Project gives you a unique way to control the project and focus your energies and creativity.

Build a Better Story is a ebook written on fiction writing aimed at new writers

Story Design Forms are a set of blank forms to develop characters, plot, scenes and more.
